

Few Iranians subject to 'departures'

by Nancy Kirwan
Associate News Editor

Four or five SDSU Iranian students are subject to "voluntary departure" because of technical violations found in their student visas, according to Steve Barnes, assistant dean of student affairs.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has checked about 75 percent of SDSU's 299 Iranian students, and the number found with violations is far below the national and regional averages, Barnes said.

The national average is 10 percent and the regional average is 18 percent, but only about two percent of the SDSU students have been found with violations, Barnes said.

Bob Mitton, deputy district director of the INS in San Diego, said information concerning which schools the students attended was not being released, because the INS felt disclosure could be detrimental to the schools involved.

Students who are found by INS to be deportable can choose either to leave the country voluntarily in 90 days or can contest that status at a deportation hearing, according to Mitton.

Twenty-nine of the 208 have agreed to leave at their own expense, according to Mitton. He said that the 179 others were awaiting trial.

A deportation hearing takes place before a judge, to whom the students must prove they have not violated their visa specifications. If the judge finds that there have been visa violations, the violators will be sent home at taxpayers' expense.

People who can prove they would be persecuted for racial, religious or whatever reason if they were shipped home can apply for asylum in the United States. Although Mitton said that so far only one student had filed the forms for asylum, he added that many students are considering applying.

Working without a permit was the main reason students were classified as deportable for visa violations, Mitton said. The next three reasons he listed were overstaying the permitted time, not carrying a full load of classes, and transferring from

Houses fail fire inspections

3 frats lose on-campus status

Three fraternities have been denied on-campus status because they have failed to pass their fire inspection, campus officials report.

Tau Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Delta Upsilon still have some minor infractions that will have to be cleared up before they can gain fire department approval and be reinstated as on-campus organizations. All three expect to do so by tomorrow.

The denial of on-campus status means the fraternities will not be allowed to have events on campus, cannot participate in Inter-Fraternity Council activities, and are barred from competing in intramural sports, according to Doug Case, IFC adviser. The groups also lose their right to use Aztec Center facilities.

Four fires in the past year led the housing office to require the fire inspections for the first time this semester, said John Gaughen, chairman of the A.S. Activities Policy Board. All fraternities and sororities were notified of the new requirement in August, Gaughen said.

"We were fairly lenient because this was the first semester it needed to be done, and some of the houses needed modifications," Gaughen said. "Some of the houses were exceedingly good, others failed to comply or waited until the last minute to do so."

Gaughen added that in his two and a half years on the Activities Policy Board, only one or two organizations had ever been denied on-campus status.

"They (the fraternities) cannot survive without the on-campus status," he said. "They need the status to belong to their national organizations."

Case added that he thought the three fraternities involved would comply before Friday so they can compete in this weekend's intramural sports events.

Timothy Jara, Tau Kappa Epsilon vice president, said his house's repairs would be completed by Friday.

"The problem is that there were certain things we had to fix, and we didn't have the money," Jara said. He added that the fraternity held an open party to raise money for the repairs and that "two new doors are being worked on right now."

Randy Corkett of Sigma Phi Epsilon said his house's repairs would likely be done in time for the weekend events.

"I don't think we've been inspected the second time yet," Corkett said. "All we had to do was fill a fire extinguisher and put a door on the side of the house." Corkett added that a lack of money also contributed to the delay at their house.

Drive started to get dope initiative on 1980 ballot

by Vincent Trola
Staff Writer

A drive to gather petition signatures to allow a 1980 California marijuana initiative to be included on the November general election ballot has begun.

Official papers and a $200 fee were filed with Attorney General George Deukmejian on Nov. 13. The attorney general's office will prepare a title and summary of the proposed ballot measure, which is required before petitions can be printed.

There will not be an official statement for Deukmejian's office until the title and the summary have been announced, according to Cashie Apperson, an election coordinator from the secretary of state's office in Sacramento.

"I have no idea when that will be," she added.

The actual signature drive, which must collect 346,000 California voter signatures to be eligible for the ballot is expected to begin Jan. 1.

The initiative authored by Leo Paoli of Visalia, a deputy public defender, was filed on behalf of NORML (National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws).

The proposed initiative would repeal penalties for the private possession, cultivation and transportation of marijuana by adults for their own use.

It would also establish a state commission to conduct a feasibility study on the agricultural, economic and tax benefits of a legal marijuana market in California.

"More time and effort has gone into the planning of this marijuana initiative than went into any previous one," Paoli said, calling the measure "a realistic legal approach for the '80s."

A budget of $100,000 has been projected for the signature drive, with most of the funds coming from benefits, concerts and direct

Agreement made

LONDON (AP) — Britain, the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government and the guerrillas fighting there reached agreement Wednesday on a cease-fire, British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington announced, clearing the way for elections and an end to seven years of war.

Carrington spoke to reporters after a 15-minute full session with representatives of the Patriotic Front guerrilla forces and delegates of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa's Salisbury government.

Supplies held up

THAILAND (AP) — The Thai military, in what one officer described as "subtle" pressure, kept food and water shipments from reaching a huge enclave of displaced Cambodians for a fourth straight day Wednesday, and thousands began to move farther into Thailand.

The government last Sunday began barring relief supplies from the area in an effort to force some 200,000 of the Cambodians to move to the Khao I Dang camp, seven miles from the Cambodian border and farther away from potential fighting zones.

Demand rejected

IRAN (AP) — The militants occupying the U.S. Embassy rejected as "worthless" Wednesday the Security Council resolution demanding release of their 50

American hostages, but the government radio said the U.N. action left open the door to negotiation.

Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council met Wednesday night but issued no comment on the U.N. resolution, adopted unanimously Tuesday.

Reaction voices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department reacted simply Wednesday to an official Soviet commentary accusing the United States of using "crude military and political pressure" against Iran in its attempt to free 50 American hostages.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter called the commentary, which appeared in the Communist Party newspaper, Pravda, deplorable and said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance conveyed this message personally to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Measure defeated

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the heels of back-to-back votes adding as much as $27.5 billion to the "windfall-profits" tax, the Senate refused Wednesday to tax away part of the oil industry's cherished oil-depletion allowance.

On a 57-37 vote, the Senate tabled, or killed, an amendment by Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., that would have cost independent oil producers an additional $14.6 billion in the 1980s.

Dymally may run

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Former Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally is planning to run for Congress next year, for the seat held by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Hawthorne, the Sacramento Bee said Wednesday.

The newspaper quoted a source close to Dymally who said the former lieutenant governor's plans were "pretty definite."

Company pays off

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Getty Oil Co. has agreed to a $75 million settlement in a suit brought by the Department of Energy that charged the company with violating federal price regulations.

The Los Angeles-based company agreed to pay $25 million in cash into a fund to help the economically disadvantaged meet higher energy expenses this winter, company officials said Tuesday.

Judges are target

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The law-and-order group that nearly unseated Chief Justice Rose Bird last year said Wednesday it has a new judicial target for 1980: about 10 percent of the Superior Court judges up for re-election.

The targets, about 18 incumbents, will be selected from answers to questions sent to judges around the state about their views on criminal law issues.

Grenades missing

SAN DIEGO — Five live hand grenades are unaccounted for at the 32nd Street Naval Station in San Diego and may have been stolen. Naval investigations said a box which holds 20 grenades was found abandoned in a rest room at the South Bay facility, with only 15 grenades in it.

It was not known whether the box was taken partially full or whether the percussion-type grenades were removed by whomever stole the box.

A climber's paradise

by Sandil Castleberry

A rockclimber's haven, and a place where the imagination can go wild, Joshua Tree National Monument, located near 29 palms, is a unique part of the high desert.

Throughout the flat valley landscaped with yuccas, Joshua trees and huge odd-shaped jumbled rockpiles, many visitors have claimed this high desert region as their weekend get-away.

Sitting at the top of one of the huge rocks enjoying a magnificent view, people hear hoots and howls that echo through the valley. They aren't coming from owls, but from rockclimbers who have chosen difficult paths up the stone-faced walls and have just reached the top.

According to geologists, the boulders are a product of millions of years of erosion. Visitors often see the boulders as rock-faces or other shapes.

Tom Wilson, from San Diego, makes it a week-end tradition to drive up to Joshua Tree. Wilson finds the rough quartz surface of the rocks make them easy climbing.

Wilson said he and his friends really look forward to spending weekends up there when there is a full moon. "The stone faces on the rocks really come to life under full moon shadows," Wilson said. "It's really magical."

Legend has it that Mormon pioneers gave the Joshua tree its name. In the branching shape of this tree, (actually a giant Yucca,) these thirsty travelers saw the prophet Joshua waving them on, leading them toward the promised land with upraised arms.

Since Joshua Tree is a national monument, it is well protected. Nothing is picked up and nothing leaves. Extensive fines for doing so are well enforced. That way it can remain a place for all to enjoy, a retreat from city life.

— Photos by Sandil Castleberry.

TOM WILSON of San Diego clings to the rough wall of quartz boulder as he makes his way to the top. The climber on the left has ascended nearly 100 feet up a narrow rock wall, and is sweating out the last 25 feet to the top. The top of the boulders affords a sweeping view of the rock-littered flatlands of Joshua Tree Monument.

"The legislature remains indifferent to the need to change marijuana laws, and it's time for people to act," Paoli said.

Interestingly the western director of the Drug Enforcement Administration told a newspaper reporter some weeks ago that marijuana had become the largest cash crop in the state.

Jerry Jensen was quoted as saying that the weed had surpassed grapes and cotton, bringing in $1 million annually.

Changing of the guard: 'Ayatollah Dylan' style

by Geoffrey Fedak

At the height of his popularity, Bob Dylan did not want the burden of being the spokesman for an entire generation.

He begged to have the badge taken off him because he could not stand it anymore. He told us we did not need a weatherman to know which way the wind blew. But recently Dylan has taken on a new crown of thorns. He has done an about face and now seeks to tell all the people how they should live.

The answer he says is not blowing in the wind but is in Jesus. The people have been anesthetized though they have seen too much of old Cronkite on the seven o'clock news and have heard too many hard luck stories that have gone around.

People always like to get advice, but they resent being preached to. So does Dylan have the power to pull off his new preaching gambit?

We have seen how he has built and maintained his following even though constantly changing and trying something new. Time and time again he has defied the odds. He has gone from folkie, to revolutionary, to electric rocker, to country and western, to slick showman.

In every case he has been successful. But can he make this latest transition to religious soothsayer? Is the Dylan mystique, charisma, legend, or whatever you want to call it, strong enough to retain his following? The answer, which comes easily

If you have seen his recent San Diego concert appearance is "Yes."

On stage his ragged-edged voice is more powerful and forceful than ever. He sings with strength and conviction.

His magnetism pulls you along if you get close. It was evident toward the end of the concert, when individuals would walk up past the stage to get just a quick glimpse up close, just as if Billy Graham had called them up to receive Jesus at a revival meeting.

He was the Ayatollah Dylan, his diversified audience of pot smokers and "amen" sayers whipped to a religious fervor as a mob in the streets of Tehran. They believe in his sincerity and in what he has to say. His religious zeal rubs off on them.

Even though he once mockingly asserted that God was on America's side, even though he told us Jesus could never forgive the masters of war; when he says it is time to kick the dust off our shoes and not to look back, but to go forward, we want to go with him.

It is another changing of the guard. Dylan is blazing another new trail, and the die-hard Dylan fans do not want to be left one too many mornings and a thousand miles behind.

Geoffrey Fedak is a psychology graduate.

'Grading profs' already done

Editor:

Your editorial "Grading profs" (Nov. 30) asks: "After all, who is in a better position to judge teaching effectiveness than students themselves?"

This simplistic rhetoric obscures the facts and issues involved. For 10 years faculty teaching has been assessed on the evaluations done by students. Students are asked to assess their professors' performance on a wide variety of grounds, and are offered an opportunity, which relatively few take, to add whatever comments they like.

So what the student politicians have "won" by a recent trustees decision is not evaluation of faculty by students, which has been going on for years, but participation in the assessment of these evaluations by a few select "student representatives."

I have no objection to the inclusion of "student representatives." But students should not misunderstand the value of this action. Past experience suggest that student representatives will find the evaluation process enormously time consuming, difficult and unrewarding. Those that manage to persevere are most unlikely to produce a distinct student perspective on the evaluations they are asked to assess.

But all of this is really beside the point. It is clear from your rhetoric that the purpose of this drive for student representation was not a different perspective, or any substantive improvement in the evaluative process. The objective was the assertion of student power. These student politicians, representing less than five percent of the student body, are anxious to substitute their authority for that of the faculty and administration. Their object is "input" and "power."

Frustrated, as we all are, by a society apparently indifferent to our needs and will, the would-be student leaders have sought and found opportunity for self-expression. Their victory is not one of substance. It consists of having shown the "arrogant" faculty and administrators that students have clout.

The victors do not claim that "grading profs" will improve the quality of education at SDSU. For the fact is that representation for students is a personal victory for the student "activists," and of little consequence — certainly no good — for the rest of the SDSU community.

Sexist ad leads to Coors boycott

Editor:

A blatant example of sexism appeared in the Nov. 29 issue of the Daily Aztec. A Coors ad announced a contest featuring a "put yourself in this picture." It portrayed a male contest winner dressed as an ad executive who was approached by a large-chested, tight-sweatered secretary offering her "after hour services." The winner was also referred to as Mr. Big.

There was, admittedly, a brief allusion to the possibility of a female contest winner, but the overall message of the ad was clear: The Coors people presume that only males will enter the contest, and they apparently assume that only males use their products. Why else would they show such total disregard for women in their advertisement?

What I propose is that this seemingly minor sexist display should not be ignored. It must be realized that no form of sexism is petty, and that by failing to protest this type of advertising people implicitly condone the mentality behind it.

I understand that proceeds from advertising are crucial to the Daily Aztec's survival, but money received at the expense of further repudiation and oppression of women is received at too great a price.

The anger of the people should be expressed. Take the time to let the Coors Company (and the Daily Aztec staff) know that sexism in any form is intolerable and will not be accepted by the college community. Boycott Coors. Such pressure is necessary to convince them of the seriousness of this issue.

Looking for a new twist to the time-honored tradition of gifting friends and associates with a "jug" at Christmas?

This year, we suggest the jug be a decorative plastic one filled with 100 percent pure maple syrup from Butternut Mountain Farm in Vermont.

Unsurpassed for table use and as a natural, healthful substitute for cane sugar in recipes, this dark amber gourmet delicacy is made in the traditional way to capture that old-fashioned flavor not found in grocery store syrups. The easy-pour plastic jug has a screw cap to maintain flavor and freshness.

The syrup is available in the following container sizes:

The Pop

The Pop to perform at Backdoor tonight

Playing two shows at the Backdoor tonight will be L.A. based rockers the Pop.

An appearance by the group three months ago was enthusiastically received by a near capacity crowd at the Catamaran. This response is undoubtedly a factor in their quick return.

The quartet blends pop rock with more experimental sounds to produce a catchy, original sound.

Vocalist/guitarist/songwriter Roger Prescott said, "We're more interested in taking the traditional and destroying it through the contemporary and the experimental than just re-running old tunes. There is no reason to go back. You can't go back, because that music was the popular culture for that day, and that day has passed."

Opening for the Pop will be local group Fingers.

Shows are scheduled to begin at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 for SDSU students and $4.50 for general admission and are available at the Aztec Center Box Office.

Stale drama, simple story pull 'Runner' movie down

by Mathew Eisen
Staff Writer

Catholic priests have really been under attack in the movies lately. First horror films such as "The Exorcist" and "The Omen" have them fighting for their lives against the devil and often losing. Then "The Amityville Horror" has a priest blinded and almost killed by a haunted house.

"Now 'The Runner Stumbles' gives us a priest fighting against his own love for a nun. The real struggle in this movie, however, doesn't concern the priest, but the audience's battle with simple drama and a predictable and largely ineffective story."

"The Runner Stumbles" stars Dick Van Dyke as the man of the cloth who is on trial for the murder of a nun. As the story unfolds in flashback, we learn that he has fallen in love with the young woman and is charged with a crime of passion.

The story takes place in 1927 and was shot on location in a beautifully rustic little town in the state of Washington. The photography and production design is superb, largely due to the efforts of top cinematographer Laszlo Kovacs.

As a period piece the film is enjoyable, but the drama seems as old and stale as the time in which it takes place.

Van Dyke is a good actor who has proven himself in a few dramatic roles. Here he simply lacks the depth required by the character, and his lines occahis vows of celibacy are never fully developed.

The rest of the cast are all top actors stuck in mostly inferior roles. Kathleen Quinlan plays

'The Runner Stumbles' gives us a priest fighting against his own love for a nun. The real struggle in this movie, however, doesn't concern the priest, but the audience's battle with simple drama and a predictable and largely ineffective story.'

tionally sound as if he were still Rob Petrie on his old television show.

The anguish he suffers trying to reconcile his love for the nun with the rules of the church and the sparkling young nun so full of life, but her open rebellion against the town's strict moral code and the laws of the church seem out of place for a story set in 1927.

A highly touted look at the stuff that men and women sacrifice their homes, their hearts, and their humanity for.

"Dope Millionaire" — A billion dollars in a gym bag, an Uzi machine gun, and a hot tub filled and ready to go.

"Bitch Goddesses" — Meet Sue Ann, Goddess of Success, in the Back Seat of a Car.

"The Little Engine That Did" — A successful young choochoon train pays the price for a stackful of loot.

"Closet at the Top" — The pressures of an assistant relief manager of one of America's most dynamic grocery stores.

"The Woman's Undress for Success Book" — A delightful peek at the hard-driving businesswoman from a number of interesting angles.

Chamber Chorale sings of Christmas

The "Celebration of Christmas" is the theme of this year's holiday performance to be given by the Aztec Chamber Choral 8 p.m. Sunday in the Dramatic Arts Theater.

According to Frank Almond, director of the 21 voice group, they are the "most selected vocal music group on campus. Most of its members are accomplished soloists and are selected by audition."

Included in the program will be traditional Christmas music from throughout the world, including music from the 16th Century carols from France, England, Germany and American folk songs and spirituals.

In addition the program will feature solos by John Moir, Max Chodos, Heidi Glissman and Anna Carson.

The concert is free to students, $1 for staff and $1.50 for the general public.

The Chamber Choral will be giving a concert preview Thursday. They will be carolling on campus at Aztec Center and in front of Love Library from noon until 2 p.m.

FILM: Story stumbles in predictable, ineffective plot

Beau Bridges is absolutely wasted as an inexperienced lawyer defending Van Dyke. Maureen Stapleton, who won a New York Critic's Award for her performance in Woody Allen's "Interiors," struggles as a housekeeper who borders on the edge of reality. And Ray Bolger, best remembered as the scarecrow in "The Wizard of Oz," makes a rare and too brief appearance as Van Dyke's church superior.

Stanley Kramer produced and directed the film, and this gives a hint as to where the blame lies. Kramer is a veteran director whose earlier works have tackled a number of controversial issues, usually with a liberal point of view.

Among the topics he had confronted are racism, fascism and military command in such films as "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," "Judgement at Nuremberg" and "The Defiant Ones" among others. But he has often been criticized for oversimplifying the issues and uninspired drama, and this work is no exception.

Originally a successful play on Broadway, writer Milan Stitt helped to adapt his story for the screen. While it is easy to imagine this as a highly controversial and emotionally powerful play a number of years ago confined to the stage, once it is opened up by film, it loses its impact.

"The Runner Stumbles" never decides whether to shock us, tell a dramatic story, make a statement about religion or the church, or show one man's problems once his stringent spiritual and moral vows are seriously challenged. Whatever the purpose, the film never really works on any of these levels.

It isn't hard to imagine this movie being on television in the near future.

Gaines hopes to repeat road success

by Howard Stutz
Staff Writer

At the University of Detroit, David "Smokey" Gaines compiled a two-year record of 47-10.

A key to that record was victories on the road. Last year his squad went to the NCAA tournament after road victories over Marquette, Rhode Island and Oregon.

This was a key reason for Gaines' hiring, as last year the Aztecs won only two road games, USF and Nevada, Las Vegas.

Tonight San Diego State starts its first road trip of the year, meeting at Idaho State in Pocatello, Idaho and Saturday they travel to Kansas.

SDSU beat the Bengals 104-83 and upset the Jayhawks, 81-69 last year. Both games were at home.

Idaho State may not be ready for another team from the West Coast.

The Bengals are 0-3 after losses to UCLA, USC and Pepperdine.

The Bengals finished with a record of 14-13 last year and have lost three starters from last year's squad. One of those was Lawrence Butler, who led the nation in scoring with a 30.1 average.

The best returning player appears to be Paul Wilson, a 6-foot-5 swingman who averaged 5.9 points a game.

The top returning scorer from last year is 6-foot-11 center Joe Fazekas, who averaged 10.2 points a game.

Saturday SDSU will travel to Lawrence, Kan. to face the Jayhawks.

So far this season Kansas is 1-1 with a victory over Nevada, Reno and a loss to Oral Roberts University.

At the beginning of the season the Jayhawks were ranked 19th in the nation but the loss to the Titans knocked them out of the top 10.

The top returning player is guard Darnell Valentine who averaged 16.1 points a game last year.

This year's Jayhawks appear better than last year's, 18-11, Kansas coach Ted Owens said.

"I believe this is a much better shooting team than last year. I feel we are still a young team, but we are obviously much more mature than last year," Owens said.

speaks out

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — A Lobo booster says he had a copy of a junior college embossed seal made for suspended University of New Mexico basketball recruiter Manny Goldstein:

Bill Blackstad, a member of the Lobo Club and owner of Gordon Printing Co., said Tuesday that Goldstein asked him about a year ago to make a seal for Mercer County Community College in Trenton, N.J. Blackstad said he ordered the seal struck at The Valliant Co.

Goldstein and head basketball coach Norm Ellenberger were suspended Friday after the FBI released a transcript described as a wiretap conversation between the two coaches.

The FBI transcript detailed an alleged conversation in SCANDAL/page 14.

Hall leaves football staff

Defensive coordinator Sid Hall resigned from the football staff yesterday, citing personal reasons for his departure.

"I wish the football program continued success in the future," Hall said. He had been with the Aztecs for nine years.

Hall joined the SDSU staff in 1964 under former head coach Don Coryell. Hall left in 1968 and coached with the Oakland Raiders Los Angeles Rams and St. Louis Cardinals before returning to the Aztecs in 1976.

"He's looking to pursue other coaching possibilities right now," Aztec head coach Claude Gilbert said. "He's a fine man and a fine coach. He's done a lot for the university and the program. We wish him the very best."

Gilbert indicated a replacement will be named sometime this month.

In 1976, Hall guided the Aztec defense to 10th in the nation in scoring defense, but injuries have made the defensive unit a weak spot over the past two seasons.

The Aztecs finished this season ranked fourth in the WAC in team defense, allowing 345.2 yards a game. SDSU finished last in scoring defense, giving up 25.1 points a game.

Hall started the season with an abundance of talent, but several key players missed the season due to injuries. Defensive end Jim Wilks and linebacker Paul Carroll, two of the top defenders in spring drills, both missed the entire year. Six of the seven top inside linebackers also missed the last half of the season.

Swimmers join Long Beach field

The SDSU men's swimming team is preparing for this Saturday's Western State Relays in Long Beach. The meets gets under way at 10 a.m. and includes the relays of some of the nation's finest schools, including Pepperdine, UCLA, USC, Santa Barbara and host Long Beach State.

Head coach Mike Judd said, "This is really one of the toughest relay meets in the country. We'll be trying to improve on last year's performance and tune up for the Coronado Invitational."

The Coronado meet is Dec. 15 and 16 across the bridge on Coronado Island.

The Aztecs will take an 0-2 record to the Western Relays, (losses to Arizona and Arizona State). The Aztec men have not competed since the Arizona meet Nov. 10, and they are looking forward to putting together two meets on consecutive weekends.

ROAD: Aztecs hope for success

This will be the second meeting between the two schools. When the Aztecs upset Kansas last year, the Jayhawks were ranked seventh in the nation.

"I know one thing for sure, we have a little extra incentive for the game this year. We played one of our poorest games last year against San Diego State," Owens said.

Gaines is happy with his start this season and the prospects of the upcoming road trip.

"We really didn't play that bad against USD. They were favored, and I'll take those wins any way I can get them.

"I'm optimistic about the trip. I think we will come back 3-1, but I wouldn't mind coming back 4-0," Gaines said.

But Gaines wasn't really looking ahead to the road trip Tuesday night. He was just happy with the Aztec victory.

"Right now I don't even want to think about the road trip. I'm just happy with what we did tonight," Gaines said.

In the victory over the Toreros, Aztec guard Joe Mendoza helped lead the cause with 13 points, and he is happy about the Aztec showing so far this season and the prospects of his first road trip.

"I like the way we perform our running game. We played well tonight, but we missed too many free throws.

"I feel the road trip will be good. I'm looking forward to playing Idaho. One of my old teammates plays for them," Mendoza said.

Hula Bowl tabs Fidel

SDSU offensive tackle Kevin Fidel has been selected to play in the Hula Bowl All-Star game Jan. 5 in Honolulu.

Fidel, a 6-foot-3, 245-pound senior, has started for the Aztecs the past two seasons. He was named honorable mention All-WAC last week, and is considered a pro prospect as a center.

SCANDAL: Seal adds to probe

which Goldstein told Ellenberger about arranging for an academic transcript for Lobo basketball player Craig Gilbert. The alleged transcript would have given Gilbert credit for work at Mercer, which he never attended.

The FBI said it seized a Mercer seal from Goldstein's Albuquerque apartment last week. Agents also said they found a Mercer envelope and transcript request form in a search of Goldstein's office and the seal and Mercer transcripts for Lobo basketball players Andre Logan and Gilbert in his apartment.

Blackstad said he has seals made all the time.

"I just order them. It's not my job to check them out. When people want seals, I never question them," he said.

UNM has ruled Gilbert ineligible to play because he is lacking in credits. Logan, the Lobo co-captain, is eligible.
