Block party welcomes freshmen to greek life

Girls wearing short skirts jumping on trampolines, guys running around with Super Soakers and everyone baking in the California sunshine. No, it’s not “The Man Show” on tour — it’s greek life for the students at San Diego State.

The first annual Aztec Block Party at Fraternity Row kicked off Saturday, Sept. 6. The lawn in front of Cox Arena was dotted with men in board shorts and women adorning their latest sorority-embazoned tees, all trying to stay cool in the 90-degree-plus heat.

Approximately 300 people showed up for the event, some who are already greek and some for a chance to meet their future sorority or fraternity members. Freshmen and other SDSU students were encouraged to join all four greek councils, including the Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Association, United Sorority and Fraternity Council and the Pan Hellenic Council for some water-related activities and refreshments. A disc jockey was on hand providing music for the event.

"It was nice to see the community coming together," said Jamal Jackson, a freshman from the president’s office.

The block party is an opportunity for SDSU students to get together throughout the year to raise awareness of greek life. It's also a great way to meet people thought there floatsat Kappa Delta’s booth. She said her sorority chose to sell root beer floats, "a type of drink that people thought there floatsat Kappa Delta’s booth. She said her sorority chose to sell root beer floats, because last year it was popular," said Priscilla Ocena, a freshman from the president’s office.

The party was hosted by the SDSU Pan-Hellenic Council for best public relations. The SDSU Pan-Hellenic Council is one of the greek life organizations that was established at the end of last school year with funds from the president’s office.

Cultural diversity attracts students, faculty

By Lorena Navia

Last Thursday evening the Cross Cultural Center hosted several cultural receptions all over campus. It was the first time that the “Community Receptions” event was held at San Diego State.

The event was intended to help students, faculty and staff from similar cultural backgrounds connect with each other. This was also an opportunity to learn about other cultures. The receptions were designed to facilitate a sense of connection to the greater SDSU community, said Priscilla Ocena, former president of Associated Students and CCC staff member. "It’s a time to meet and mingle," Ocena said.

"It was a great idea to have SDSU students and faculty members represent several different cultural groups, including African and African-American, Asian and Pacific Islander, Chicano and Latino; disabled; lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender; Native American and women," said Jamal Jackson, a freshman from the president’s office.

The Cross Cultural Center event shows all cultures, not just ethnicities," said Jamal Jackson, a freshman from the president’s office.

A tribute to Wesley Williams.

“I thought from watching the film that they (the Aztecs) were a group of people who’s can go out there and play and be successful,” OSU head coach Jim Tressel said. “I didn’t think they would be the kind of team to play around the best."

Despite the tough loss, the scoreboard is in way reflected the level of play put forth by both teams. The Aztecs easily empleyed their defending national champions and not sure that the Buckeyes showed for rest of the country that they can win the best.

Missed opportunities

SDSU had several opportunities to pull back and take over the lead in the second half. But the Aztecs couldn’t make the defense to push around the experts to eat their words square off against the national champion Buckeyes. They

WOMEN’S SOCCER

New intensity level nets first win of season

Castellanos, Aztecs knock off Long Beach State as they hold 49ers without a shot

BY DAVID BECK

The San Diego State women’s soccer team came into the game against Long Beach State Thursday with the feeling that it was not going to be denied.

The Aztecs were coming off two tough losses, and they knew that a win could turn the season around and get it going in the right direction. And they got exactly what they hoped for by soundly defeating the Long Beach State 49ers by a score of 2-0.

The scoring for the Red and Black started after senior forward Kim Castellanos scored on a penalty kick at the time of 26:49. Castellanos would add another goal in the second half at the 61:49 mark.

Castellanos, in fact, almost had the first hat trick of the season because of her first shot of the game bouncing off the right crossbar and going just wide of the goal.

One of the main differences between this game and their first two was the intensified effort of the team. “Today was a 180-degree turnaround,” head coach Chuck Clegg said. “We pressured them into making mistakes.

The Aztecs also came into the game against Long Beach with the attitude and swagger it takes to win.

“We had a positive, all-new mind set,” Castellanos said.

“We were all just trying to pump each other up.”

The game against Long Beach was viewed as a major turning point for the team as well.

“I knew that if we kept working hard, that eventually we would come out of our slump,” Clegg said.

One aspect of the Aztecs’ game that came up huge was their defense. They did an amazing job of stifling the Long Beach scoring attack by not letting the 49ers take any shots on goal the entire game.

SDSU, on the other hand, managed to record six shots on goal. They included four shots by Castellanos and two shots by sophomore forward Lissette Martinez.

Overall it was a very impressive performance by the Aztecs that could be seen as even more impressive because of the two rough games that they played before.

Clegg said he was encouraged by his team’s ability to “rebound from a horrible effort to put up a tremendous one.”

With the win over CSULB, the Aztecs improved to 1-2 in this young season.

Their next test will be in the Kansas Tournament, which will be held at the University of Kansas in Lawrence. Their first game will be against the currently undefeated University of Central Florida Golden Knights at 2:30 p.m. Central on Sept. 12.
