

Referral service helps homeless

by Andrew Kleske
Daily Aztec staff writer

An undetermined number of SDSU students are still homeless and have turned for help to the housing referral service established by the Housing and Residential Life Office.

Between 11,000 and 12,000 students use off-campus housing, said Michael Hoctor, director of housing and residential life.

"I suspect that several thousand will use the center this year," Hoctor said. Primarily funded by Associated Students, the center is the result of incredible numbers of students still without housing. It also takes some pressure off the housing office, said Irma Munoz, off-campus housing adviser.

Because of A.S. funding, the referral center project was virtually unaffected by budget cuts.

The center has hundreds of listings for boarders, apartments, houses, studios, male/female only, roommates and rooms in exchange for work.

It also has six free phone lines, a meeting place and information on furniture rental, rental rights and fraternity life. Bus and trolley schedules and city maps are also available.

The center is located in Aztec Center, room C, and is equipped to help any student looking for housing, roommates or tenants. The center is open every weekday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Student I.D. or other proof of student status is required. There is no service fee.

Dave Bell, a business junior, said that he was checking with realtors but found that everything was too expensive. Please see REFERRAL on page 16.

Business students crashing in classrooms

by Linda Howanietz
Daily Aztec staff writer

Business students will crash courses in the classroom this semester, after three semesters of centralized crashing.

The crashing policy, which was moved this semester from the undergraduate advising office back to the classrooms, was changed because of a lack of overcrowding, according to Allan Bailey, dean of the College of Business.

"We instituted a centralized system when we had more students requesting classes than we had space available," he said. "You institute a policy when you have a problem; the problem no longer exists."

The new procedures are outlined in the class schedule, and instructions are being posted throughout the Business Administration building and the campus, according to Bailey.

A mailing to students was not used because of budget considerations, he said.

The crashing policy change is only one of several that have taken place in the College of Business in recent years.

Declared officially impacted in fall 1981 to ease overcrowding, the college required students to have at least a 3.0 instead of a 2.0 in their lower division business classes.

COME AND GET IT — Square Pan Pizza serves up a new franchise in East Commons, replacing "Uncle Harvey's Place" ice cream stand. Aztec Shops expects 1,000 customers a day.

Square Pan Pizza outlet now open in East Commons

by Lisa Reynolds
Daily Aztec staff writer

Square Pan Pizza has been contracted out by Aztec Shops, Ltd. for at least the next three years in East Commons.

The installation of a new East Commons store makes two Square Pan Pizzas near campus, with an older store located near Aztec Center on College Ave.

Convenience and service was the main reason behind the contracting of a Square Pan on SDSU's campus, Aztec Shops General Manager Harvey Goodfriend said.

"If you are a track star or eat faster than anyone, the other restaurant is fine," Goodfriend said. "Here it is set up more for convenience and you can buy pizza by the slice."

Goodfriend also suspects operation times and menu restrictions will not interfere with the College Ave. store.

Aztec Shops has served its own pizza in West Commons but the bid made by Square Pan Pizza for the rights was too tempting, Goodfriend said.

"We could go into pizza but since they have the resources and the know how it is more economically advantageous for us to have Square Pan do it," Goodfriend said.

About 1,000 people will patronize Square Pan daily, toting East Commons serving capacity up by 10 percent. It should also help Aztec Shops cope more effectively with the crowds during the peak lunch time hours. This brings the number of Aztec Shops vending units to seven.

In place of Uncle Harvey's Place, the defunct ice cream outlet, Aztec Shops will introduce a Dreyers ice cream stand this week, in the East Commons dining hall. About 75 additional seats will be placed in the outside patio area to compensate for the lost interior dining.

Goodfriend would not provide specific figures on expected profits from the new store, but said the pizza place is going to give a "very significant contribution".

Geology Park is part of war against autos

by Robert Richelmann
Daily Aztec staff writer

SDSU construction usually involves chewing up large chunks of the campus, but a new park built by the Geology Department actually gave land back to the university.

The Geology Park is significant in that it replaced five parking stalls and used no school or state monies, said Patrick L. Abbott, department chairman of geological sciences.

The Geology Park is an extension of a park built last year between two geology buildings. The extension is about 50 yards long and 15 feet deep. It is hemmed in by an engineering lab building, the Industrial Arts Building and a fire lane.

The park was conceived and built by a dozen faculty and four graduate students from the Geology Department.

$5.5 million tagged for more faculty pay

by Robert Richelmann
Daily Aztec staff writer

SDSU will spend $5.5 million on increases in pay benefits for faculty and staff for the 1983-84 year.

The money will be used almost exclusively for merit salary adjustments for faculty and staff and faculty promotions, said Kenneth B. Perry, director of financial management.

The money represents built-in increases in the system for faculty and staff benefits.

The merit adjustments are a 5 percent annual salary increase awarded to staff and faculty. The increases are dependent on the "merit" of the employee and tenure. Staff and faculty can advance a maximum of five positions, or "steps."

Faculty promotion funding is used for payment of faculty who are promoted, also on a five-step plan.

However, Gov. George Deukmejian vetoed $4 million out of the California State University system's budget for the merit adjustments and faculty promotion increases.

Deukmejian blue-penciled $3 million from the budget for staff MSA and $1 million for faculty promotion funding.

As with all the budget cuts, the California State University system was left with the task of finding a way to provide the $4 million.

In this case, the CSU chancellor and the CSU employees included provisions to cover the shortfall in recently completed collective bargaining sessions.

The contract approved a total compensation salary increase of 6 percent, effective January 1.

Assistant CSU Chancellor Lou Messner said that the money allocated for the increase will cover both the salary increase and the money cut from the budget for merit adjustments and faculty promotion funding and subsequent benefits.

The benefits are tied directly to the merit adjustments and promotional funding by means of a built-in increase. Benefits are old age and Survivors Disability Insurance, Social Security Insurance and dental insurance.

The benefit increase works this way: If, for example, an assistant professor is advanced to a full professor, the merit salary adjustments and salary would increase. Then, because the professor's pay would increase, so would the benefits that go along with that salary.

Perry said employees should be cautious in assuming that because there is money available for merit salary adjustments and promotional funding, they will get it.

"The awarding of the MSA money doesn't mean that everyone will automatically get it," he said.

"Many employees are at the top of their pay scales and are probably not eligible for further increases."

SDSU parking lots undergo change, repair

by Stacy Thompson
Daily Aztec staff writer

SDSU parking lots this summer underwent a $600,000 facelift that realigned Canyon Crest Drive and will provide 80 more spaces than last year, a Facilities and Planning official said.

The opening to Canyon Crest Drive, the road that winds down to parking lots below the West Commons and Social Sciences buildings, was moved from its former location across from Peterson Gym, down 55th Street toward the apartments there.

Part two of the three-phase project, the work on Canyon Crest Drive and six lots at the west end of campus, was expected to be completed last week. Construction began in May after the end of the spring semester.

Funds for construction were awarded to SDSU from a state-wide fund composed of all California State University parking lines.

Centralized crashing system used by English Department

by Lori L. Riggans
Daily Aztec staff writer

The English Department is using a centralized crashing system this week for the first time, it was announced.

The crashing system is modeled after the Spanish Department system implemented four years ago, said Georgiana Orozco, a department spokeswoman.

"By having a central area where students can check for open classes, the student doesn't have to traipse around the campus looking for available classes," she said.

"It is hoped that by alleviating some of the hassles of class changes, the student will be able to enjoy a positive learning experience," she said.

A centralized location is used to accommodate students crashing classes. The English Department has set its crashing center in PSFA-140, and the Spanish Department is operating its center outside at the south entrance of the Humanities Building.

The system is divided into two phases. Phase one, today and tomorrow morning, is for the benefit of those students who are already enrolled in a class but want to switch the class time.

"This phase permits those students who are already enrolled in an English or Spanish class to have first priority in switching their class times," Orozco said.

Phase two is for students who need to find open classes. This phase runs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. tomorrow and continues on Wednesday morning.

Although the crashing systems are similar, there are several differences in their procedures, Orozco said.

"English students must provide proof of prerequisites before they are allowed to sign up for classes at the crash center," she said. Spanish students are not required to show prerequisites.

"In addition, English students are urged not to attend the classes they wish to take, but to go to the crash center instead. After they have been signed up for a class, they will be given a pass to get into the class.

"Spanish students are encouraged to attend the classes they desire while they are trying to sign up at the crash center. They will then be admitted to the class with the professor's signature.

Felony charge against SDSU prof dropped

by Kevin Clark
Daily Aztec staff writer

A felony charge was dismissed against James Nwannukwu Kerri, a tenured professor accused of attempted unlawful intercourse with a 17-year-old female student.

Kerri, a former Afro-American studies department chairman, still faces a possible six-month jail term when sentenced Sept. 26 on a misdemeanor conviction for assaulting the student at his El Cajon home last November.

SDSU President Thomas B. Day suspended Kerri, 40, from teaching and activities for one year without pay, effective Aug. 4. Day also placed Kerri on academic probation for five years following expiration of the suspension.

Convicted in April on the felony and misdemeanor charges, Kerri won a new trial June 6 on the felony count when his attorney, Peter Hughes, demonstrated that El Cajon police did not supply all the reports on the case.

The student had testified during the trial that she had met with Kerri to discuss a test grade.

Please see KERRI on page 6.

Orozco pointed out that although the crashing centers are centralized, there may be long lines.

"We are operating the centers with a small number of people due to a limited amount of funding. The lines may get a little long, but we will try to accommodate the students as quickly as possible," she said. "It's important the students realize that all changes are on a first-come, first-served basis and subject to space availability."

Suffering suffrage

Vox populi vox Dei.

To state the obvious: Fees for attending California colleges are skyrocketing; classes were cut last year, and more may be cut this year; recruiting efforts for quality professors are failing because California refuses to offer competitive salaries; students are paying more and receiving less.

Gov. George Deukmejian has earned himself a large part of the blame, but, when we place the remainder of the blame we have only one place to point: in the mirror.

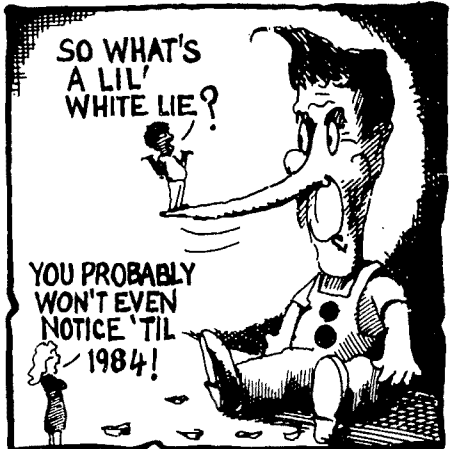

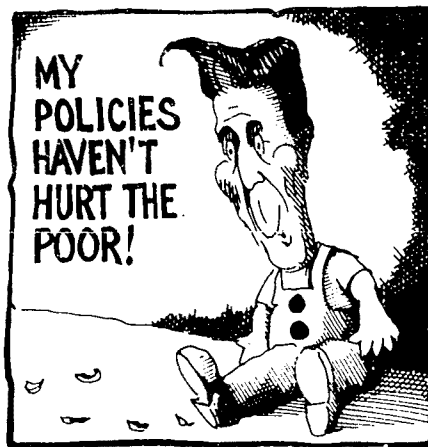

We university students do not vote. If we voted, candidates sympathetic to the concerns of higher education could count on us for support and in return we could count on them.

Unsympathetic candidates would hesitate to undermine higher education for fear of retaliation from student voters. Now, both types of politicians can be certain that on voting day we will show up in droves — at the beach.

Even if we ignored elections, as we do, we still have the opportunity to express ourselves in campus elections. In this too, we fail. If we made impressive showings at student polls and elected officers who genuinely care about, and are willing to fight for, student concerns, the governor and legislature would think twice before using universities as budgetary scapegoats. As it is, our apathy has caused our elections to be devoid of political significance in Sacramento.

More important than our interests as students, however, is our duty as citizens of a democracy. As Robert Maynard Hutchins wrote:

"The death of democracy is not likely to be an assassination from ambush. It will be a slow extinction from apathy, indifference, and undernourishment."

America's poor carry weight of arms buildup

by Marian Wright Edelman

Baby C was born prematurely with lung disease. His parents lived in a car, received no prenatal care and inadequate nutrition — living on handouts from neighbors and hospital staff. By the time Baby C died at seven months, the mother again was pregnant with Baby D. Baby D was delivered stillborn in the car five days after Baby C's death.

These two American children should not have died. Nor should infants in Detroit who suffer infant mortality rates comparable to infants in Honduras — the poorest country in Latin America.

Since 1980, our president has been turning our national plowshares into swords and bringing good news to the rich at the expense of the poor. An escalating arms race and nuclear proliferation hold hostage not only the future we adults hold in trust for our children, but also the present, which, for many millions of youth in America, is one of relentless poverty.

A recent study of child deaths by the Maine Department of Human Services found that poor children in America die at a rate three times that of non-poor children, and that poverty is the ultimate cause of death for 11,000 American children each year. This is more deaths in five years than all American battle deaths during the Vietnam War.

Yet in his first year Reagan proposed $11 billion in cuts for programs for children and poor families, without distinguishing between effective and ineffective programs. Congress enacted $9 billion in cuts.

In his second year, Reagan proposed $9 billion in cuts in these same programs; Congress enacted $1 billion in cuts.

Now in his third year, the President is proposing $3.5 billion in new cuts in these same programs just as the effects of the previous cuts are being felt and millions of Americans are beset by joblessness, homelessness and lost health insurance. Thousands of children face increasing abuse, illness and mortality because their families are unable to meet their needs while family support, health and social service programs are being dramatically cut.

At the same time, Reagan is trying to convince Americans to give the Pentagon $2 trillion over a seven year period in the largest arms buildup in peacetime history.

When President Reagan took office, we were spending $18 million an hour on defense.

This year, we are spending $24 million an hour.

By 1988, if the President had his way, we would be spending $44 million an hour on defense.

It is our strong view that the American people have been sold a set of false choices by our national leaders who tell us we must choose between jobs and peace; between filling potholes in our streets and cavities in our children's teeth; between day care for five million children and home care for millions of senior citizens living out their lives in nursing homes; between arms control and building the MX. There are other choices — fairer choices — that you and I must insist our political leaders make.

Just one hour's worth of President Reagan's proposed defense increase this year in military spending would pay for a year of free school lunches for 19,000 children. A day's worth of his proposed defense increase would pay for a year's free school lunches for almost one-million low-income students. A week's worth of his proposed defense spending could buy a fully equipped micro-computer for every classroom of low-income children of age in the United States assuming 25 children to a classroom.

Or, to look at the cost of specific weapons:

✓ Building one fewer of the planned 226 MX missiles would save $110 million, or the amount needed to eliminate poverty in 101,000 female-headed households a year. If we cancel the whole MX program we could eliminate poverty for all 12 million poor children and have enough left over to pay college costs for 300,000 potential engineers, mathematicians and scientists who may not be able to afford college.

✓ Eliminating nine of the Pentagon's planned 100 B-1 bombers would save $2.3 billion, about what it would cost to finance Medicaid for all pregnant women and children below the poverty level.

The Children's Defense Fund is seeking enactment this year of a Children's Survival Bill (H.R. 1603 and S. 572) to restore funding for selected children's programs unfairly cut by Reagan. These restorations would return some semblance of fairness to the budget and alleviate some of the child suffering we and others have documented.

Twenty years ago Dwight Eisenhower eloquently expressed the need to invest in our children rather than bombs; in mothers rather than missiles:

"Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired signifies... This world in arms is not spending money alone. It is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children."

Los Angeles is Los Angeles by any name

Because of circumstances beyond my control, I had the displeasure of spending the summer in L.A., specifically, Long Beach.

Hold on to your gas masks, Los Angelenos, I know Long Beach isn't really L.A., but it's as L.A. as I'd like to get. After all, it is in L.A. County, the newspapers carry daily smog readings, it has that ghastly 213 area code, and the radio and television stations originate from L.A., where the top stories usually concern movie moguls arrested for bouncing checks.

Reeks of L.A. to me.

As do the L.A. drivers. Not only do they refuse to let anyone enter their lane, but they pretend not to see other drivers. For a city saturated with actors, they do a poor job of convincing friends of the road that they don't realize someone wants to share their piece of the blacktop. San Diegans will at least look you in the eye while hogging the lane you want.

And there are Dodger fans. Lots of 'em. If there's anything more obnoxious than a Dodger fan from San Diego, it's a Dodger fan from true-blue Los Angeles.

to admit being followers of the Los Angeles Dodgers, America's favorite preppies.

Among Dodger fans' countless flaws is their inability to remain seated in Dodger Stadium for more than seven innings. They arrive late, and they leave early, all for the sake of avoiding traffic and ensuring that

And it was played at Dodger Stadium. Hallelujah. The Dodgers hadn't been swept in a four-game series at home since Cincinnati pulled it off in 1976.

In game four of June's Padre-Dodger series in L.A., Dodger fans were confident pitcher Fernando Valenzuela would pull through against Padre hurler Dave Dravecky, at that time 10-4 and the winningest pitcher in the majors. When Fernando, dubbed "Fat-mando" by his followers (L.A. fans give derogatory names even to people they admire), let L.A. drop to San Diego for the fourth consecutive time, Dodger fans called it a slump.

And Hiroshima was a mishap.

Granted, there are nice parts of Los Angeles. Just as there are nice parts of Harlem. No, I'm not saying L.A. is like Harlem. I couldn't do that to Harlem.

Mary Jo Zaffs

In L.A., backers of the Boys in Blue live by the security-in-numbers axiom. Quite simply, others put up with their Dodger ways in Los Angeles because Dodger fans outnumber non-Dodger aficionados. San Diego has enough of those types as it is, but they're sufficiently street-smart to know not their quiche will still be warm by the time they get home.

I don't profess to be much of a Padre disciple, but I was ecstatic when the Padres bagged the Dodgers in a four-game sweep in June. It marked the first time this season that L.A. had lost three in a row, let alone four.

Library

Bosseau is also concerned about staff reductions affecting library security.

"We still have the same size building and the same number of people using the building and the same floor space to cover," Bosseau said.

"I don't want to get in a position of reducing the density of our staffing in order to maintain hours to the extent that we can't insure security for people using the building."

Health

No time limit has been set for public health to receive accreditation, but a real pinch in classroom and laboratory space will be felt within the next two years, Madero said.

ATTENTION SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING MAJORS!

The Air Force has openings for young men and women majoring in selected science and engineering fields. Like Aeronautical, Aerospace, General and Electrical Engineering, Mathematics, Physics and Computer Technology.

To help prepare for one of these, Air Force ROTC offers two and four year programs of study which will defray some of your college costs.

After completion of the AFROTC requirement, and upon your graduation, you'll be commissioned an officer in the Air Force. Then comes responsibility, experience in your specialty with some of the best people and facilities in the world, and a mission with a purpose. You'll get excellent starting salary, medical and dental care, 30 days vacation with pay beginning your first year, and more.

Program offers SDSU senior students low-cost enrollment

People older than 60 may attend SDSU at minimal expense this year because of a special program offered by the university.

All SDSU classes are open to senior students on a space-available basis after regular students have enrolled. Under this program for seniors, the $30 application fee and the $105 a semester student services fee are waived. However, a fee of $7 is charged.

Students participating in the program are expected to meet normal admissions requirements, including submissions of official transcripts of previous college work. If fewer than 56 semester units have been completed, high school records and the results of an entrance examination are required.

The application process can be completed by mail. Anyone wishing to apply can contact Ivy Clark in the Office of Admissions at 'Records at 265-4098.

Applications are being accepted for the Spring 1984 semester, which begins Jan. 23, for the main SDSU campus, as well as the Imperial Valley Campus at Calexico and the North County Center in San Marcos.

Because the demand is heavy for some classes in business, telecommunications and film, nursing, engineering and computer science, university officials said enrollment in those areas will be difficult.

To allow sufficient time for processing, the university is asking students to apply as early as possible.

She said Kerri took her to lunch and then to his El Cajon home. Kerri grabbed her and wrestled her to the floor. Later, Kerri drove her home.

Hughes argued that Kerri ceased his advances when the victim continued to resist and that there was insufficient evidence to warrant the charges.

The deputy district attorney moved that the felony charge be dismissed after Superior Court Judge Michael Greer said it would be reduced to a misdemeanor. The deputy attorney general asked for the dismissal because Kerri would not receive any additional sentence if he were convicted on a second misdemeanor charge.

In addition to resurfacing lots J, K, L, M, W, and V, workers installed emergency call boxes and energy-efficient lighting, said Larry Piper of the Facilities and Planning Office. Landscaping was also done, he said.

Phase one of the parking lot renovation, done a few years ago, created C lot on the east side of College Avenue, bordering Alvarado Road.

"The project was decided on five years ago as part of a capital development program," Piper said.

"A parking and traffic study was done for the university and it was recommended to eliminate dangerous roads," he said.

Phase three will improve older parking areas in need of restoration.

Tailgate contest to kick off Aztec football

PARTY TIME—SDSU Football Coach Doug Scovil addresses the crowd at Wednesday's kickoff for the "World's Greatest Tailgate Party" contest. The contest will be at the San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium parking lot on Sept. 10 prior to the Aztecs' home opener against California.

Cross country tunes 'way up'

by Terrie Lafferty Romley
Daily Aztec sportswriter

After a week of high-altitude training and conditioning in Big Bear, the SDSU men's cross country team will begin its season with its top six runners from last year.

"I think we've got a bunch of guys who are not going to be stars, but who will run well as a group and who recognize that they will be competing as a team," Coach Dixon Farmer said.

Farmer, in his 20th year of collegiate coaching, will begin his second

"The team was able to train twice a day to see how their bodies reacted to altitude. A week before the conference meet we'll go back up for a weekend to train in the altitude."

The team size is kept under 18 runners because "a percentage of our training is done off campus, so we have to keep the team size down because of transportation," Farmer said.

The team meets in the afternoon five days a week running eight to 12 miles a day.

The team travels to Mission Bay, Coronado, Balboa Park and Lake Chollas for a varied regimen of workouts.

"The most important aspect is that there is a variety of environments for the team to train in," Farmer said.

Among the dozen or more runners who will begin workouts today are Brian Harold and Jose Vega, the top two runners from last year.

According to Farmer, Harold, a senior, is back to maintain the number-one spot that he held last year.

Harold, who is also the team captain, "is dependable and we lean on him very much," Farmer said.

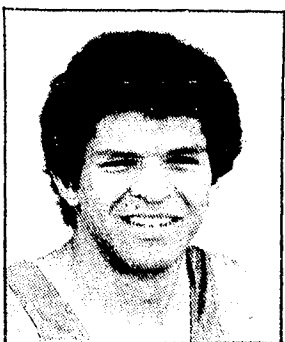

Jose Vega, a sophomore, holds the second position on the team. Vega was the number-one freshman in the conference meet last year and finished 17th at the WAC meet.

"He was a precocious, big strong 18-year-old last year and is a strong 19-year-old this year," Farmer said.

Vega also won the National Junior Olympic Cross Country Championship last year.

Jeff Woodland, a returning senior, is the third man in the Aztecs' line-up and compared to an injury-plagued season in 1982, is starting out healthy this year.

year as the men's cross country coach.

The team spent five days training at 6,750 feet in Big Bear to become accustomed to higher altitudes because SDSU is the only college that is not at altitude, according to Farmer.

The Aztecs spent a week in the Laguna Mountains last year.

"The purpose of training for a week in altitude was three-fold," Farmer said. "It gave the runners the opportunity to develop interpersonal relationships without outside pressures such as school and work."

Youthful women harriers brace for uncertain year of rebuilding

by Karen daSilva
Daily Aztec sportswriter

The graduation of two top runners, Liz Baker and Debra Chadwick, has turned the 1983 women's cross country season into open territory for freshmen and a rebuilding year for the Aztecs.

"We'll have a very young team with a lot of new faces," SDSU Coach Fred LaPlante said. "We'll have a good blend of returning and new runners, and we should do well."

"But, like I said, the key to the team will be a lot of young runners, and I just don't know where they're at right now."

LaPlante, who recently returned from a two-month vacation in Europe, doesn't know where his new faces, which include Jill Harrington of Rolling Hills High and Sharon Yaninek of Presentation High in San Jose, will fit in. Both were ranked among the top nationally in high school track.

As of Tuesday, he had yet to see any of his runners perform this summer.

"They're keeping 'running' logs that I'll look at when I go to practice," he said of his plans for later this week.

LaPlante expects to have a good idea of where his team is by the time the squad has its first meet in Los Angeles at the UCLA Invitational Sept. 18.

Senior Laurie Crisp, who was the No. 1 Aztec from last year, will be returning to the course where she finished third.

"Laurie ran a really good race last year," LaPlante said.

Although LaPlante predicts SDSU will finish third in the WCAA this year, the team still won't be close to No. 1 Stanford. Because of this, LaPlante has opted to bypass any chance at the nationals this year in favor of an international meet in Japan.

CRISP STEPS—SDSU women's cross country runner Laurie Crisp strides for the finish line during a meet last season. Crisp is the Aztecs' top runner and is one of two starting seniors returning in the 1983 season.

The Japan meet in November will be a road race that will include 14 teams from Japan, squads from Italy and Russia and other nations, LaPlante said.

Of this year's team members, Crisp and Lisa Gross are the only two starting seniors. By going to Japan, they are forfeiting their final chance to compete in the nationals, but LaPlante said their chances of qualifying for the nationals would be slim.

"I don't think they'll care," LaPlante said. "I think they would rather go to Japan."

The first signs of the relationship between the SDSU Athletic Department and a local sports-promotion group were made evident Wednesday at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium with the kickoff of a contest billed as the "World's Greatest Tailgate Party."

The tailgate party, sponsored by Jack in the Box, will be held in the parking lot of San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium prior to the Aztecs' home opener Sept. 10 against California.

The party is the first in a series of activities planned by the Greater San Diego Sports Association to take place at SDSU home games this season to help transform Aztec football games into "five-hour experiences."

In doing this, the GSDSA and the SDSU Athletic Department are hoping to improve attendance significantly at Aztec home games. Last year, SDSU averaged 20,452 spectators a game for its poorest year at the gate since moving games to the stadium in 1967.

Although the GSDSA plans a long-term relationship with SDSU, L. Robert Payne, GSDSA vice president and Major College Football

Committee chairman, said the organization will concentrate this year on increasing attendance by 100,000 over last year's, which would generate some $960,000 in revenue for SDSU. Payne said the association also aims to increase student attendance from 3,000 or 4,000 to 11,000 per game.

The GSDSA is a non-profit corporation composed of San Diego sports and businessmen and was created solely for the purpose of promoting major sports in San Diego.

In June, the GSDSA announced it was forming the Major College Football Committee to help establish a collegiate football power for the San Diego area. SDSU is the school that the GSDSA aims to turn into that football power.

"We're going to be putting on things to complement the football game," Payne said. "You're going to see the darndest dog and pony show. We're reasonably certain that we will have a sellout for the Cal game. We're dedicated to see that happens."

GSDSA giving San Diego athletics a sporting chance

by Kirk Kenney
Daily Aztec sports editor

When a group of local sports and businessmen organized the Greater San Diego Sports Association in 1960, its aim was to gain recognition for the city for something other than its temperate climate.

At that time, there were no major sports teams. For that matter, there wasn't even a facility capable of accommodating a San Diego team. But the GSDSA had a few ideas.

As members of the non-profit corporation see it, they have a civic responsibility to enhance San Diego's image as "SportsTown USA" by bringing in top-notch teams. The GSDSA's members do not realize any direct financial benefits from their involvement, although their businesses may benefit from the monies spent by visitors coming to town for the sporting events.

"It was really created with the idea of bringing major sports to San Diego," GSDSA Vice President L. Robert Payne said.

And it did.

The association's first major effort resulted in the arrival of a professional football to San Diego — the Chargers moving to San Diego from Los Angeles. But they were forced to play in tiny Balboa Stadium, which seats about 20,000 fans. Members began envisioning the creation of a multi-sports facility.

The GSDSA financed a feasibility study for the new stadium and led the campaign for its approval when it was up for public vote. San Diego Stadium (now San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium) was dedicated for the Chargers' first game in 1967.

Later, the GSDSA was instrumental in helping to bring the Major League Baseball Padres and National Basketball Association Clippers to San Diego.

The GSDSA has also been active on the college scene recently. After a feasibility study in 1977, the GSDSA began a full-scale effort to bring a bowl game to San Diego and was rewarded for its efforts in April, 1978 when the NCAA officially sanctioned the Holiday Bowl.

Now, the GSDSA is concentrating its efforts on helping to make SDSU a major college football power.

The GSDSA formed the Major College Football Committee to "organize the resources of the San Diego area in such a manner that major college football will play an increasingly exciting and dynamic role in the finest sports community in the country," GSDSA President Arthur Rivkin said at a June press conference to announce the corporation's latest major project.

Payne said switching from night to day football games was one factor for the GSDSA's decision help SDSU football.

"The switch to afternoon football allows San Diego State results to get into the Eastern papers and schedule better teams," Payne said.

Please see GSDSA on page 9.

"He is an inconsistent competitor but has a lot of experience," Farmer said. "I think he is the swing man on the team."

Another returning senior is Mike Classon, who is farther along than he was last year, according to Farmer.

"Classon is a very consistent competitor," Farmer said.

One of the most improved runners on the squad, according to Farmer, is Marshal Verano.

Verano, a senior, is a "good team man," Farmer said.

Two new additions to the team are Carl Caracoza and Michael Hunt.

Caracoza is a junior transfer student from El Camino College and Hunt transferred from Oxnard Junior College. Both Caracoza and Hunt are marathon runners.

Two runners with impressive records will also be competing for SDSU this year.

Rodney Rivera and Mike Robbins, who are both from Grossmont Junior College have impressive backgrounds but their training has been spotty the past few months," Farmer said.

Rivera was the junior college state champion two years ago and Robbins placed in the top five in the JC state meet a year ago.

After placing fifth in the WAC meet last year, Farmer is optimistic that SDSU will have a good season.

"We had a modestly successful season last year," Farmer said. "I think this is going to be a pretty darn good year."

Farmer said that the teams to beat will be El Paso and BYU. "Colorado also has a strong distance team," he said.

Only two teams qualify for the championships in this region and El Paso has won the title five out of six years.

The first competition for the Aztecs will be the Red and Black meet Sept. 10 in Balboa Park. The harriers will toe the line against each other and SDSU alumni in a four-mile race, which begins at 9 a.m.

Following the Red and Black meet will be the UCLA Invitational where the Aztecs will compete against other teams in Southern California.

SDSU will be gearing for three major meets, including the Aztec Invitational, the Stanford Invitational and the WAC meet. Last year, the Aztecs finished 11th in the Aztec Invitational and 10th in the Stanford Invitational.

HEY, JOSE—Aztec sophomore Jose Vega is approaching the finish of a race last season. Vega figures to be one of the SDSU men's cross country team's top runners this season as does team captain Brian Harold.

"The combination that Aztec attendance was very disappointing sort of comes together as a natural thing (for our involvement).

"This is sort of a second step after the Holiday Bowl. We went to (SDSU President) Tom Day when we decided to go with the project and we said, 'Here are some of our ideas, what do you think?'"

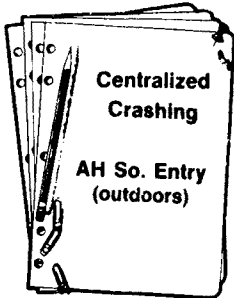

Day has warmly embraced the GSDSA's ideas as the organization begins an intensive effort to help Aztec football in 1983.

Former SDSU Athletic Director Gene Bourdet said he will work with the GSDSA. The GSDSA is not new to Bourdet. He said the organization gave SDSU financial support with the expansion of the weight room and the enlargement of the football practice field last year and can be a big help to the SDSU Athletic Department.

"I think they can do a great deal (to help SDSU) because these are the leaders of the community," said Bourdet, who is now assistant to the president for athletic and community affairs. "They have been responsible for bringing pro football, baseball and basketball to the community. Now that they have all those in town they are looking to help the Aztecs build a major football program."

Tailgate

GSDSA President Arthur Rivkin said he hopes that Aztec football tickets will someday be as hard to get as Charger tickets, where virtually everyone is a season-ticket holder.

"That essentially is our goal," Rivkin said. "Tickets are going to be mighty scarce."

The tailgate party will have four different categories: Traditional Aztec, Most Spectacular, Most Unique Theme, and Student, with prizes for the top entries in each category.

Grand prize for the contest is dinner for eight at Jack in the Box — in Hawaii. The prize includes air fare and six nights lodging in Honolulu. There is also a special student grand prize of a trip for eight to Palm Springs during spring break.

The overall runner-up will receive a trip for eight to the Rose Bowl. First-place winners in each category will get dinner for eight at Carlos Murphy's in Las Vegas along with two nights lodging and tickets to the Nov. 29 road game against Nevada-Las Vegas. Runners-up in each category will win dinner for eight at Carlos Murphy's in San Diego.

So far, Jack in the Box has been the main business backing behind Aztec football in 1983. It is hoped that other San Diego area businesses will follow Jack in the Box's lead.

"Jack in the Box has been a big supporter of the Aztecs," said Jack Goodall, president of Jack in the Box and an SDSU alumnus. "Our hope is to embarrass, if that is the right word, other businesses into sponsoring the Aztecs."

Jack in the Box is the sponsor of the game with the Bears. San Diego Federal will sponsor the second game, which will be against Long Beach State Oct. 8 and be followed by a Linda Ronstadt concert. The Athletic Department and GSDSA are hoping to get businesses to sponsor the remaining 1983 home games.

At a kickoff banquet held by the Aztec Athletic Foundation, the SDSU booster club, Aztec Football Coach Doug Scovil expressed his appreciation for the GSDSA's expertise in helping the SDSU football program become a football power.

"I was very, very impressed meeting some of these gentlemen," Scovil said. "They're going to do it. They're going to put the people in the stands, and we're going to do our best to keep them coming back."

Letter

Seating change hits below belt

Dear Ms. Hill,

As student season ticket holders, my wife and I are very disappointed in the recent change of the Plaza reserved sections (0-6) to "open seating." Our complaint is not that these sections were changed to "open seating" but the manner in which this was accomplished.

We have had season tickets in the Plaza section reserved, two each, and this year renewed our option to retain these tickets. The tickets are paid for and we were counting on having our same seats. In fact, our seats were confirmed.

Now we have received a post card that states our tickets are now in the Loge section and the Plaza has become "open seating." We buy our entitled one-season ticket allowed per student and take my wife's parents to the games as they too are avid Aztec supporters.

Our contention is that if the seats were to be changed they should have been changed before student season ticket holders had paid for their tickets and been confirmed. We feel strongly that this changing after the fact is a breach of contract that we had already had and paid for. We enjoy having reserved seating and not having to fight for a seat.

We cannot believe that the season tickets were changed in mid-year. If a change was to be made it should have been effective next year or season ticket holders should not have been affected.

Perhaps you already knew this, but not that many people had season tickets in the student reserved section (last year) and as soon as the game started people with general admission tickets sat with us.

We hope you will have the courtesy to read this letter and make a reply.

Zebra

Figures from last year indicate that while enrollment figures dropped, circulation rose 6 percent.

Additional training hours for staff along with computer programming hours must also be added to expenses.

Money spent on training and programming may be supplemented by shortening hours at the beginning of the semester for one or two weeks, Bosseau said.

"We just don't really know what our budget is now, and we have got to train a lot of people for this new system," he said. "Library use is very light during the first few weeks of the semester."

Library officials said the zebra's cost is not known, because it was provided by the California State University system. However, last May, Bosseau estimated this year's cost at more than $50,000.
